Yes, this building used to be Bricky's!

The original portion of the restaurant was built in the 1920's by a gentleman named Cy Brick. Any portion of the building with real logs is from the original building. All other sections have been added on since the 1950's. It was a speakeasy during the prohibition years and later became a haven for young people to meet (many will tell you the crowd was often too young). The ownership of Bricky's has changed several times after Mr. Brick. It was operated under the Bricky's name with a bar and music atmosphere until Anton (Tony) Gaetz and his wife Lorraine purchased the building in the early 1970's and changed the name to Anton's. A small menu was offered and live house bands were featured on the weekends. In the early 1980's a full menu was developed and the live music discontinued. Anton's has always been a family owned and operated business employing not only Tony and Lorraine, but also all five of their children (Dave, Dan, Nancy, Toni, and Betzy) throughout the years. Anton's (Bricky's) is sometimes confused with Lee's Log Lodge which was located on the site where Slumberland now stands. The history of our building and its owners gives Anton's the eclectic and interesting atmosphere you see today.

Notes: Anton's does not flood every year. This is a common misconception.
